

Nicholas Yeager
Chief Technology Officer
nicholas.yeager@infiniti-capital.com

---

To any potential FunctionEight client,

FunctionEight has been providing outsourced IT support services to Infiniti Capital since 2004. Infiniti quickly grew from a one office shop in Switzerland to an investment bank running nearly 2 billion in capital, with offices in New York, Zurich, London, Hong Kong, Sydney and Christchurch. FunctionEight was with us every step of the way helping us tackle the many IT challenges a business faces during rapid expansion.

FunctionEight helped us deploy their Firewall and VPN solutions to our offices, giving us secure, cost effective, easy to manage intrusion protection. They also helped us connect our offices around the world over a dedicated Private IP network.

Outsourcing preventative maintenance to FunctionEight engineers allows me to focus on IT projects that improve the business without the distraction of having to put out small fires on a daily basis. Successful IT Management is all about diligently preventing problems before they arise, and FunctionEight understands this.

When a FunctionEight engineer performs a task they log the description and length of time into their system. When a task is entered into the system I receive an email with all of the details I need to know. This allows me to keep up to date on their tasks and my costs for the month without having to ask.

FunctionEight has also been very flexible with availability of their engineers when dealing with differences in time zones which is vital to our business. I would recommend FunctionEight to any business looking for a cost effective, hassle free way to outsource their IT.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Nicholas Yeager".

Nicholas Yeager
Chief Technology Officer
Infiniti Capital